THE 1920-1921 BUDGET.

Reference to last year's report will show estimated cost of schools for current year as follows:—

ZENAS N. FREEMAN,

GEORGE C. EVANS,

W. A. THOMPSON,

School Board of Jefferson.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

To the School Board and Citizens of Jefferson:

I took charge of the Superintendent's office on the 11th day of last November, succeeding Mr. Eugene Tuttle, whose service closed with the month of October. The schools were organized and plans made for the year's work by my predecessor and I have thought it wise to make as little change as possible. I am very appreciative of the kind way in which I have been received by the people of this town.

My inspection of schools has revealed the fact that many if not all schools in this district suffer from poor attendance and tardiness. We do not wish to compel the attendance of children who are sick, but we do feel that parents who keep children out to work or for trivial cause, are unfair to the children and the school organization.

As to the work of the schools I will only say in a general report of this kind that the excellence of the work of any school bears a direct ratio to the ability and faithfulness of the teacher. In other words, the most important factor in making good schools is the teacher. Believing as I do in the importance of the teacher, I shall be pleased to see those teachers who are doing good work retained in the same school as long as is practicable.

It is not likely that there will be any change in the average of teachers' salaries throughout the state next year but some inequalities will be eliminated and excellent teachers will be paid more and some poor teachers less.

It is probable that if we wish to keep our rural schools going in the future, we shall have to provide our own teachers. We shall not be able to bring in teachers from other states or other parts of this state. We need to look ahead and urge our promising girls to graduate from high school and normal school and come back to the home town to teach a few years before they marry.

The problem of keeping the rural school open is becoming increasingly difficult. Co-operation on the part of the community is necessary and as a rule the better reputation a community has for treating a teacher well, the better the teacher who can be induced to go there.

I am not all convinced that the present junior-senior high school program at the Hill is preferable to a junior high school program alone with provision made for teaching agriculture. The present plan of alternating two years' work is unsatisfactory but is the best arrangement that can be made if a complete secondary program is to be carried out.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN H. FULLER.
